Cookie policy

1. General information.

This Cookie Policy is an integral part of the Privacy Information (accessible at Our web-site) of Subtletexts (hereafter "we", "our", "us" or "Subtletexts") and provides information on the use and management of cookies and similar technologies on our site, www.subtletexts.com (hereafter "site"), in line with The Data Protection Act 2018 (Data Protection Act) and EU Regulation 679/2016, applicable as of 25 May 2018 (General Data Protection Regulation) (both laws will be collectively referred to below as "applicable law").

2. Definitions and features of cookies.

2.1. Cookies are information that websites and apps send or read on users' devices the first time they visit, and then re-sent to the same sites and apps the next time they visit, in order to "remember" actions and preferences (for example, login information, selected language, character sizes, display settings, etc.) so that they do not need to be re-entered the next time You visit.

2.2. Based on the functionality and use of cookies, We can distinguish them into different categories:

2.2.1. Strictly necessary technical cookies. These cookies are essential for the website to function properly and are used to manage various website-related services (such as logging in, accessing reserved features, etc.). The retention of these cookies is strictly limited to the working session or may be longer in order to "remember" the visitor's choice. Deactivation of strictly necessary technical cookies may jeopardize the user's experience and navigation on the website.

2.2.2. Analytics and performance cookies. These cookies are used to collect and analyse traffic and use of the website in an anonymous way, which allows system tracking and improves performance and usability. Although they do not identify the user, these cookies can, for example, determine if the same user returns to the site at different times. Disabling analytical cookies may result in loss of site functionality.

2.2.3. Profiling cookies. These are persistent cookies used to identify (either anonymously or otherwise) a user's preferences and improve the navigation experience.
